

ANTONY GORMLEY

HIVE, 2006 - 2009

The HIVE sculptures were the first attempt to identify a human space in space at large by building crystal-like space-frame polygons around a body volume, initially pressed to the wall and ending with a free suspension.
